Hardwick village wants the Caledonia county jail, and by right of natural selection it is perhaps entitled to it.

As the situation looks now it will be surprising if Mr. Bell does not have a clear majority on the first ballot.—Bellows Falls Times.

It will be more of a surprise if he does have a "clear majority" on the first ballot.

The St. Albans Messenger has drawn information from the state delegates to the Republican national convention that they are all for Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, which is, of course, as was expected. On the matter of vice-president there is a division between Fairbanks, Hitt or Shaw, with the delegates possessed of the "open mind," ready to hear the best that can be said of each. Senator W. P. Dillingham, heads the list of delegates, and he naturally has the best means of knowing the candidates mentioned for the office. Senator Dillingham says: "Following personal inclinations and my present judgment I shall favor the nomination of Senator Fairbanks for the office of vice president; but I am in no sense pledged to support him and shall carefully study conditions before reaching a final conclusion in the matter."

SECRETARY MOODY'S SUCCESSOR.

The probable appointment of Secretary of the Navy William H. Moody to be attorney general in Roosevelt's cabinet leads to the usual speculation as to his successor in the navy department. Vermonters naturally turn to Charles H. Darling, who is at present assistant secretary of the navy, while the Vermont delegation at Washington is said to be lending its influence to the end that he be appointed. Assistant Secretary Darling's service and experience in that department under Secretary Moody would perhaps make him the natural choice for the position, and that fact will probably have powerful weight in the selection of a successor to Mr. Moody. However, much as Mr. Darling's friends in Vermont would like to see him honored, they are not really expecting that he will be given the cabinet position. It is more than likely that the place will go to some other section of the country.

THE HORROR GROWS.

Unlike most disasters of the tremendous sort this steamer horror at New York grows in its terribleness. The estimated number of killed and injured was put entirely too low at the start, and only as the work of the recovering of the bodies continues does the full magnitude of the disaster become apparent. The record number of lives lost is particularly large because very many children in arms were on board the excursion boat, being taken by their mothers to make a complete and happy family circle on the day's outing. These small children were swept away from their mothers in the rush for safety and later as the latter were forced into the water by the onrush of the flames became separated from them and were drowned. In the loss of children's lives the disaster is unparalleled in the history of this country, as it is also in the list of steamboat horrors. The fact that there were so many children on board the boat swells the casualty list very largely, and the total number of lives lost may be nearly one thousand, by the time the bodies have all been recovered or accounted for. At the present time there are hundreds unaccounted for, while the number of bodies recovered exceeds half a thousand.

There's Always the Stage.

All the world's a stage,
And every lady fair and proud
Thinks if misfortune came her way
She could at once go forth to play
And be applauded by the crowd.

The race horse and bland politician
Find life but a chance at the most.
Sometimes he wins out with precision,
And sometimes he gets left at the post.

In June.

Full leafed in pride of deepest green,
The earth in the sunshine basks serene.
Where hidden blossoms crowded cling,
A thousand bees are murmuring.
As showers drift from the freshened land
With a seven barred bow in the rain cloud spinning.
The wild rose yields her subtlest scents
Where haycocks pitch their fragrant tents.
The longest day's too brief for June,
The night too short for such a moon!
—Sara Andrew Shafer in Outlook for June.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

The corner stone laying ceremonies of the new Catholic church at Newport will be held next Sunday June 19. The basement stone and about half of the first story are laid. It will be an imposing structure and from its location on Prospect street can be seen from all directions.

Rev. J. Malcolm Smith, who has been rector of Trinity church at Powneys for over three years, has sent in his resignation to the vestry of the church. He has accepted a call to become the pastor of a church in New Berlin, N. Y., and will go there with his family about the middle of July.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Carrie Wilson Mead, daughter of Mrs. Stella R. Mead of Rutland, to William Austin Hendrick, associate editor of the Rutland Evening News, which will take place at the home of the bride's cousin, Charles M. Smith of 88 Park St., Tuesday June 28, at 8:30 o'clock.

The force of Italians numbering about 100 employed by the contractors, Herd & Sherman, of Schenectady, in putting in the new water system at West Rutland, struck Wednesday morning because they did not receive their pay. The contractors have been paying on the 10th of the month but both of them were away Tuesday looking after another job and the men were not paid.

In view of the various reports of lawlessness in Randolph which have been printed recently, the following communication to the Burlington Free Press from Dr. H. M. McIntyre of Randolph, will be of interest:

To the Editor of the Free Press:
In behalf of the good citizens of the village of Randolph, I desire most emphatically to deny that disorder exists in this community, as represented in the last two issues of the Free Press under the headlines "A Lawless Village," etc. These so-called items or news are gross exaggerations of the trivial incidents of village life. There is no more quiet, well-ordered community in the state than Randolph village.
